A DAY IN MY LIFE

Omar Miller shares his daily routine with Us!

TUNE IN! True Lies airs Wednesdays at 10 P.M. ON CBS.

8:36 A.M.

EASY DOES IT No alarm needed! Miller takes a relaxed approach to how he spends his mornings. "I lean heavily into the artist aspect of my life," he tells Us. "I don't necessarily have a routine."

10:00 A.M.

SHOWING FACE Next, the actor, 44, visits The Cari Champion Show to promote his new series, True Lies. "I'm running around bumping my gums telling everyone who'll listen about it," he explains.

12:23 P.M.

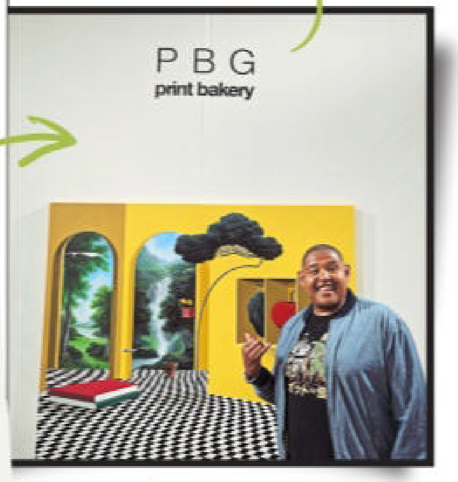
SCREEN SAVERS After visiting KCAL9 in L.A. — "Had a blast chopping it up with Amy [Johnson]," he says — Miller enjoys a power-packed salad "that came through clutch."

3:06 P.M.

DOGGY DOWNTIME "Had an hour to kill, so I came home and played with my Akitas, who decided to stay home for the day," Miller jokes. "They're quite the escape artists."

5:00 P.M.

ACTING THE PART Miller hits the studio to do some postproduction work for True Lies, where he gets into character: "Here's me as Gib, as my buddy Paul catches my stellar fake typing on camera."



6:45 P.M.

PICTURE THIS "Art is inspirational for me to get my own creative juices flowing," the Ballers alum says of checking out a pop-up gallery.

9:00 P.M.

MEET & EAT While wrapping up dinner at a steakhouse, Miller reveals he "ran into one of my favorite hoopers, Jamal Mashburn."

2:22 A.M.

SLEEP MODE After some writing, Miller hits the hay: "My life is abundant and I'm trying to keep it that way."

"I feel like two [kids] is a great number for me," notes Schroeder. "But never say never."

Super Pumped

A pregnant Stassi Schroeder is "ridiculously excited" to give daughter Hartford, 2, a brother. (Dad is husband Beau Clark.) "I can't even begin to explain how happy I am to have a boy," the Vanderpump Rules alum, 34, told Us while promoting her Mommy Dearest Tour. "The thought of having another girl come and compete with the queen that is Hartford stresses me out." Here, the podcast host dishes the details on #MomLife.

Q: How has the toddler phase been?

The terrible twos are so real. When you have a kid that's going through tantrums, it's just [about] survival. I remind myself that this too shall pass. One day, when she's 18 and out of the house, I'm going to miss those tantrums. So in the moment, I'm really good at being zen and reminding myself of that.

Q: Has Hartford started school yet?

We're actually in the middle of applying. We've toured our schools. I decided on which one [I like], and now I just need to get her in. This is so embarrassing [but] I made a "Hartford highlight" on my Instagram of all of her best moments so that as we're applying, I'm hoping the faculty will stalk my Instagram and see how cool Hartford is.

Q: Are you looking forward to reliving the newborn stage?

Real talk: I don't even remember the newborn stage, so I feel like I'm going into this blind all over again! It's like Mother Nature makes you forget so that you want to do it again. [But] I love the newborn smell. I'm looking forward to that.

A BLENDED BROOD

For more than a decade, fans of The Real Housewives of New Jersey have watched Teresa Giudice raise her daughters, Gia, 22, Gabriella, 18, Milania, 17, and Audriana, 13. (Dad is ex Joe Giudice.) Now they're all grown up. "Gia just started an internship at a law firm," the TV personality, 50, tells Us. "Gabriella and Milania play soccer, and Audriana does competitive dancing." Giudice — who exchanged vows with Luis Ruelas in August 2022 — admits combining their families (Ruelas is dad to Nicholas, 21, and Louie Jr., 19) was "an adjustment" at first, but now, things couldn't be better for the family of eight. "It's been pretty amazing," she shares. "Thank God." Watching how her kids have connected with their stepbrother Nicholas, who has autism, has only made her more proud. "As a mom, you never know if you're doing a great job," Giudice adds. "But then looking at my girls to see how they interact with Nicholas — I'm like, I'm doing a great job."

"We love and adore him," the reality star tells Us of stepson Nicholas. "The girls are so great with him, I love to see that."

Despite any drama on this season of RHONJ, "I'm focusing on my family, on my daughters, on my stepsons and on my husband now," Giudice tells Us.

A Cast of Characters

Alexa PenaVega says it's "inevitable" her kiddos, whom she shares with actor hubby Carlos PenaVega, will get into showbiz. "They watch us on set and get excited about that," the A Paris Proposal star, 34, tells Us of Ocean, 6, Kingston, 3, and 22-month-old Rio. The trio's in good hands if they do decide to get into the family business: "We'll teach them how to do it in a way that they can still have a really great normal life."

Twin Peeks

Busy mom Jamie Chung, who shares 17-month-old sons with husband Bryan Greenberg, is passing along some words of wisdom. "The best parenting advice I received is to take 10 minutes for yourself each day," the actress, 39, told Us at a DSW event. And, she says, find a community — even if it's online: "I love posting pictures [of] the boys' meals; it's a great way to interact with other moms."

Love Lives

"We have together time every single morning," Davis has said of Tennon.

VIOLA & JULIUS

Ready, Set, Jet!

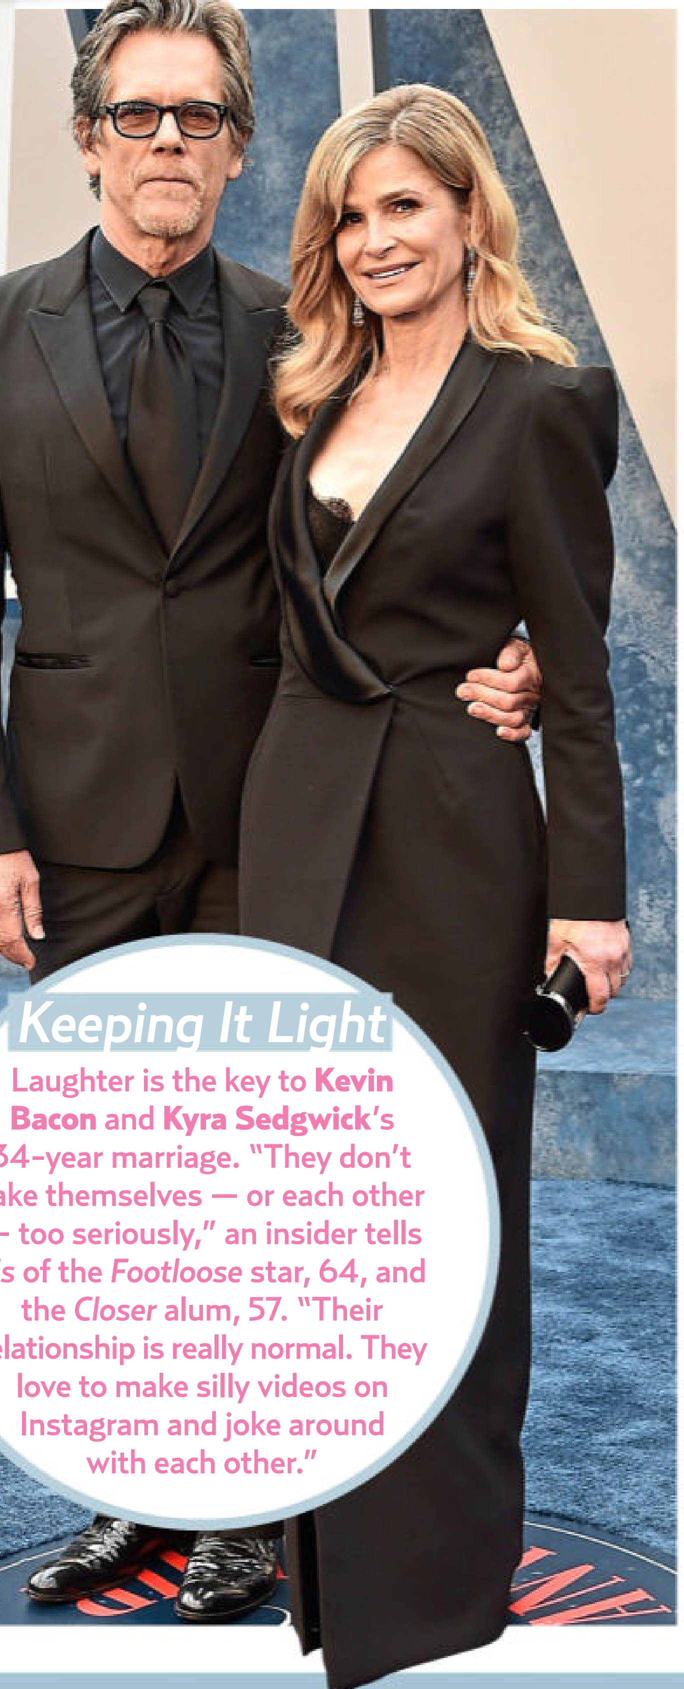
In June, Viola Davis and Julius Tennon will celebrate 20 years of marriage — and they have big plans. "They're hoping to go on a Caribbean vacation — just the two of them," an insider tells Us, adding that the Oscar-winning actress, 57, and the Air star, 69, want to press pause and reconnect. "Viola and Julius also celebrate the day they met every year, about a month before their anniversary. They always have dinner at the same restaurant in L.A.," shares the insider. "They have a solid friendship that's still full of romance."

By Isley Zegas / With reporting by Travis Cronin, Rick Egusquiza, Kara Feigeles & Stephanie Webber

KIERAN & JAZZ

Family Unit

Though they enjoy a fancy night out, Kieran Culkin, 40, and Jazz Charton, 34, are happiest at home with their two young children. "They do all the usual parent-kid stuff, like reading, painting and playing games," a source tells Us, noting that the Succession star blocks off time for date nights whenever he can. "They keep their romance alive with outings in NYC and getaways," explains a second source. "They're at a great place right now."



Keeping It Light

Laughter is the key to Kevin Bacon and Kyra Sedgwick's 34-year marriage. "They don't take themselves — or each other — too seriously," an insider tells Us of the Footloose star, 64, and the Closer alum, 57. "Their relationship is really normal. They love to make silly videos on Instagram and joke around with each other."

MELISSA & MARK

Under Construction

Melissa Joan Hart and hubby Mark Wilkerson have been together for over two decades, but she admits marriage takes a lot of work. "It doesn't get easier!" the actress, 46, tells Us, explaining that she and the musician, also 46, put "a lot" of effort into their relationship. "We've been in and out of couples therapy, and we really enjoy that because it just helps us understand each other better — even after 20 years."

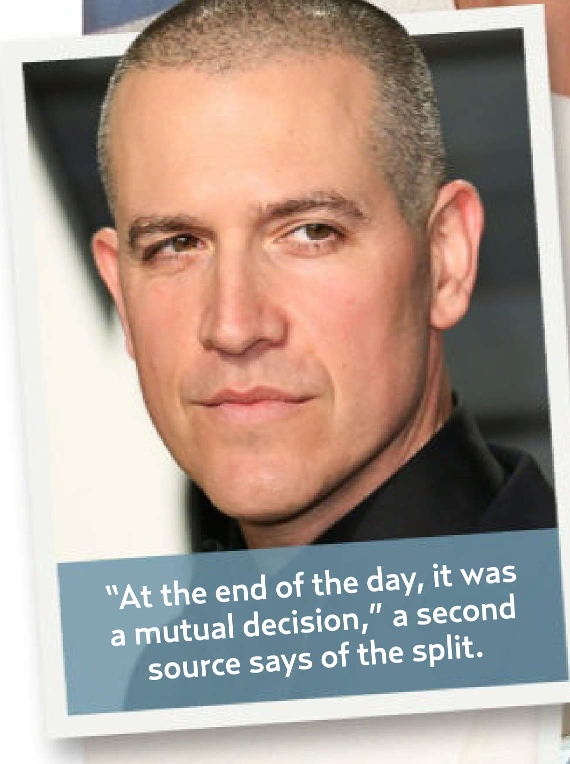
REESE WITHERSPOON

Her Next Chapter

The actress is keeping her chin up amid news of her divorce

It was a long time coming: On March 24, Reese Witherspoon, 47, and Jim Toth, 52, announced the end of their 11-year marriage. "We… are moving forward with deep love, kindness and mutual respect," they said in a joint statement. According to a source, it was a clean break. "That process started around 18 months ago. They sat with lawyers and financial advisors and figured it all out," says the source. (As Us previously reported, the pair's marriage had been crumbling since late 2020, when Toth's web start-up, Quibi, shuttered. "The feeling is he kind of withdrew around the time," an insider said.) "There was no final straw," promises the source. "It was more of a realization that they both wanted different things in life." With the split now official, Witherspoon's leaning on her close pals — but she isn't wallowing. "There's plenty for her to look forward to, as far as her business aspirations and Hollywood," the source says of the star, whose upcoming projects include season 3 of The Morning Show and Legally Blonde 3. "She's focused on making a success of what's on her plate — and has tons of other bright ideas in the pipeline."



"At the end of the day, it was a mutual decision," a second source says of the split.

"Reese and Jim are parting as friends and will continue to coparent," a source says of the pair, who share son Tennessee, 10. (Witherspoon is also mom to Ava, 23, and Deacon, 19.)

Romance Report

Us breaks down the buzz behind these pairings

GOING THE DISTANCE

He's officially moved on from Olivia Wilde! On March 25, Harry Styles, 29, was seen making out with Emily Ratajkowski, 31, on the streets of Tokyo. "They're hooking up for now, but there's definitely potential for something more serious to develop," an insider tells Us. "They share very similar philosophies and have a bunch of mutual friends too. Pretty much all their pals agree it's a cool match-up." Everyone except Wilde, 38. "Harry, Emily and Olivia have all hung out [together] many times before," notes a source. "Olivia's trying not to be jealous, but this upsets her."

BUSINESS CASUAL

MAYER DE ROTHSCHILD

Angelina Jolie and environmentalist David Mayer de Rothschild, 44, set the rumor mill ablaze with their three-hour lunch date on March 23. While a source tells Us it was simply "a business meeting," the actress, 47 — who's been single since her 2016 split from Brad Pitt — is open to finding love again. Adds a second source: "[Angelina and David] are just friends at this point, but Angie really likes him."

Slow & Steady

HILARY SWANK

Double the Fun

Motherhood is just around the corner for Hilary Swank. "She is due in mid-April and is feeling great," an insider tells Us of the Oscar winner, 48, who's expecting twins with husband Philip Schneider. "She's got their names picked out — but isn't sharing — and has been working on the nursery. Hilary is just excited beyond her wildest dreams." Especially since she's always wanted to be a mom. "In the past, her career got in the way," explains the source. "But she feels like it's the right time in her life to finally have kids." Once her little ones arrive, the actress plans to put work on the back burner. "She doesn't intend to give up her career, not by a stretch, but family is her priority," adds an insider. "Hilary's nervous about what's to come, but everyone knows she's going to be a great mom."

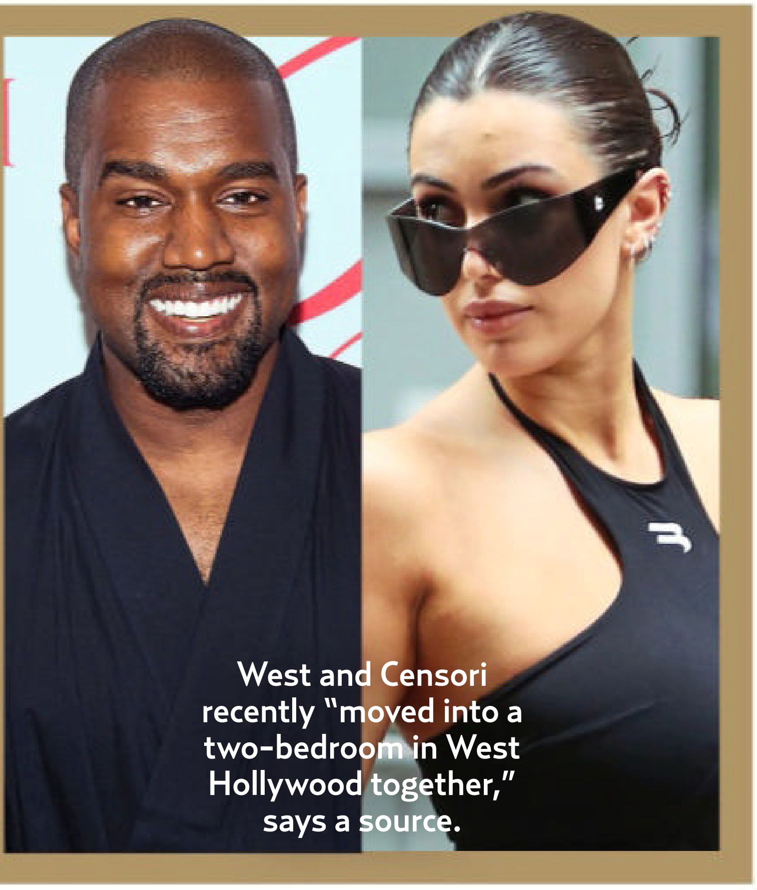
"There's no plans for a marriage license yet — they're happy with their current situation for now."



West and Censori recently "moved into a two-bedroom in West Hollywood together," says a source.

(Kotb, 58, recently took even more time off to spend spring break with Hope, 3, and her older daughter, Haley, 6.) "After the health scare, Hoda realized what's most important to her, and it didn't feel right going into work when her daughter was home." According to a source, the network fully supports Kotb's decision. "They've told her to take as much time as she needs, it's not a problem, and Hoda's doing just that," shares the source. "She's still totally dedicated to her job, but her kids will always come first — especially after everything that's happened lately."

DOING IT ALL

The golden touch! Model turned entrepreneur Tyra Banks talks to Us about branching out and life at home with her son, York

BY JAIME HARKIN

Tyra Banks has a confession to make. "I am just starting Ted Lasso," the multihyphenate star says of the smash hit series, which debuted its third season in mid-March. "I'm looking forward to not getting off the couch for days and taking it all in."

"Tyra really enjoyed her time on DWTS and working with everyone involved," a source says of the supermodel, with cohost Alfonso Ribeiro.

If anyone deserves a bit of downtime, it's Banks. The busy mom of 7-year-old York (dad is Banks' ex, Erik Asla) recently revealed she's leaving Dancing With the Stars after three years of hosting to focus on her entrepreneurial enterprises, which include the ice cream line she launched in 2021, Smize & Dream, and multiple TV projects with her Bankable Productions company. "I love breaking new ground," Banks, 49, tells Us. "I also love breaking down doors so other people can come through more easily than I did." Adds a source close to the star: "Tyra is an innovator and a visionary. Creating things from scratch is her superpower."

THE GO-GETTER

Banks has spent her more than 30-year career reinventing herself. In the early 2000s, the former Victoria's Secret Angel pivoted away from the runway and created America's Next Top Model, which ran for an impressive 24 seasons. Over the next two decades, she continued to branch out with her Emmy Award–winning talk show, a bestselling young adult novel and acting roles. "I love doing what others aren't thinking about," notes Banks. "That's how I judge success."

In 2012, Banks went back to school and graduated from Harvard Business School's Owner/President Management (OPM) Program. "I am very aware that I don't know it all," she says. The HBS alum — who taught branding at the Stanford Graduate School of Business for three years and calls it "the thing I may be most proud of with my work" — is giving the commencement address to HBS graduates in May, and is returning to the school this year for a refresher course. Adds Banks, "I can't and won't stop learning."

"I love delighting people in ways they haven't seen before," Banks tells Us.

Tyra on Julianne: She'll Be Great

Hough is replacing Banks as host on DWTS

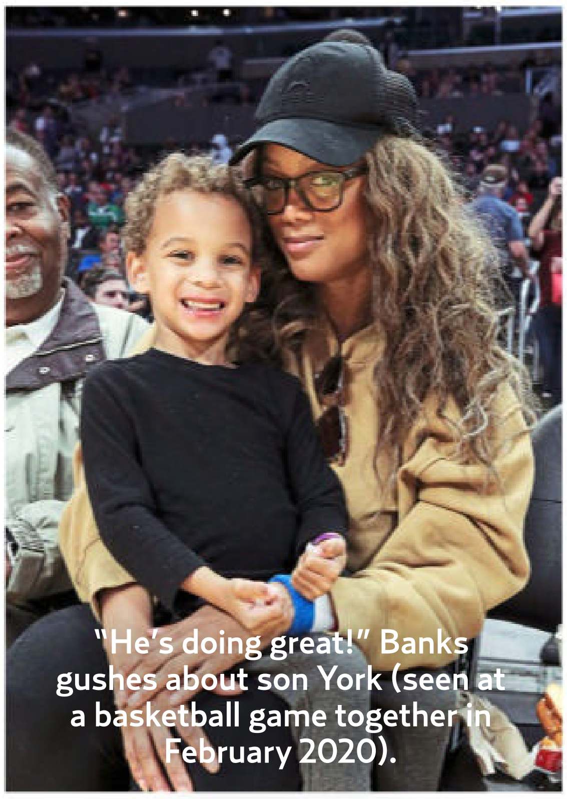
Banks has nothing but glowing things to say about her replacement, former DWTS pro Julianne Hough, 34, who will join cohost Alfonso Ribeiro for the upcoming 32nd season. "The businesswoman in me sees how Julianne is great on multiple levels," notes Banks. "She's a professional dancer, and she's the sister of Derek, a DWTS multichampion, who's now a stellar judge. It's going to be a family affair in that ballroom which people will love to watch." Plus, adds Banks, "she has so much personality. She's a perfect choice. She's gonna crush it!"

Despite her accomplishments, Banks has managed to stay remarkably grounded. "I started in the world of fashion many years ago, and there's a stereotype that everyone in the fashion world is fabulous. Yes, there are some very fancy people, but I'm not one of them. Never have been," says the Inglewood, Calif., native of not getting caught up in fame. "I'd go to work and 'werk' the over-the-top hair and makeup and couture dress and then jump back into my jeans and sneakers and go home. I wasn't a party girl. I was pretty simple [and] it still confuses people."

MOM MODE

Motherhood eclipses the Hollywood hoopla. "I don't really socialize in the entertainment industry," shares Banks, who welcomed York via surrogate in January 2016. "I take my son to school; I pick him up. I'm a mama who just so happens to be a businesswoman who happens to be on TV sometimes." York, she adds, "is the light of my life."

Banks admits being a working mom can be a juggling act. "Working from home is a privilege and also a



"He's doing great!" Banks gushes about son York (seen at a basketball game together in February 2020).

MAKING HISTORY

Banks was the first Black woman to be featured on the cover of the Sports Illustrated Swimsuit Issue.

America's Next Top Model, created and executive produced by Banks, was one of the earliest reality competition shows on TV.

challenge. Yes, mommy is in pajamas and looks like she can play Legos, but she's on a work call!" she shares. "I balance that by also coming home from meetings and jumping on the bed with my son in my business suit."

When she's not on the clock, Banks is spending quality time with York and her family. (She remains close with her mom and former manager, Carolyn London.) "I love coloring with York. It brings both of us such joy. We also have lots of fun combining words to create new ones — looks like he gets that from his mama!" (Banks famously coined the term "Smize," a combo of "smile and eyes" and means to smile with one's eyes.) Movie nights are a common occurrence. "I have seen every Sharknado and Godzilla movie man has ever made," admits Banks. "I watch it all with popcorn in hand and talk back to the TV screen."

She's OK with York following in her showbiz footsteps if he so chooses. "Whether he wants to be an archaeologist, a chef, a fashion designer, a musician, an architect, a comedian or anything else, I want him to do whatever makes him happy," Banks says. "My wish is for him to wake up each morning and not feel like it's work because he loves what he does."

Banks calls her degree from Harvard Business School's Owner/President Management Program "one of the most rewarding accomplishments of my work life."

HARVARD BUSINESS SCHOOL

LOOKING AHEAD

Leaving DWTS is bittersweet. "I loved walking out to such a hyped ballroom," says Banks. "I'm going to miss Carrie Ann [Inaba]'s warm heart and, of course, reminiscing with Alfonso [Ribeiro] about the good ol' Fresh Prince of Bel-Air days." (Banks starred in season 4 of the 1990s sitcom.)

The source says viewership among Black, Latino and Asian audiences considerably increased when Banks joined the show in 2020. "Tyra craves spaces and places that have room for expansion and big, new ideas," explains the source, adding, "she has a really strong working relationship with ABC and has upcoming projects in the works with the network."

Next up, Smize & Dream will be opening up locations in Australia and the U.S., and she has a slew of scripted and unscripted TV shows in development. Banks is down for more acting gigs, too. "I've always felt I have a role in me that I haven't had the opportunity to show the world," she shares, "something dark and gritty or lots of physical comedy."

MAJOR MILESTONE

Banks is excited about turning 50 in December. "I feel so wise," she says. "I've been around. I know what's up." She's planning to take a little break to reflect — "I'm going to let out an exhale and sit back and look at what I've accomplished and just breathe" — but not for too long. "Then I'll get right back to my 300 emails a day, Zoom calls, flying around the world and sleepless nights," she adds. "I'm making my dreams — and other people's — come true." US

NEW ADDITION

A source says America's Got Talent's ratings spiked by 10 percent when Banks joined as host during season 12.

FUN ROLE

She did a stint on Black-ish in 2015. "I hunger to make people go, 'OMG! That's Tyra?' from time to time," says Banks.

SWEET TREAT

"Tyra's always looking for ways to expand her brand," says a source of the star, who debuted Smize & Dream ice cream in 2021.

The GOOD LIFE

The legendary slugger opens up about fatherhood, family and his next chapter

Jeter was nicknamed "Captain Clutch" for his stellar postseason performances.

During his 20-year career playing shortstop for the New York Yankees, former team captain and five-time World Series champ Derek Jeter shattered multiple records and earned himself a reputation as one of the best baseball players of all time. (He was inducted into the Baseball of Hall of Fame in 2020, six years after he retired.) But the celebrated athlete, 48, says the challenges of fatherhood threw him for an unexpected loop. "I always valued and prided myself on being prepared, but you can't prepare for parenthood," admits Jeter, who shares daughters Bella, 5, Story, 4, and River, 15 months, with his model wife of six years, Hannah, 32. "You've got to make mistakes like everyone else and just roll with it." The newly anointed MLB sports announcer opens up about embracing his #GirlDad status, his new partnership with Jeep and why he doesn't miss being out on the field.

Three girls at home! They must keep you on your toes.

DJ Well, my heels too! I'm on my toes and my heels. [Laughs.]

What's your biggest parenting challenge at the moment?

DJ Patience. You have to be very patient because — especially at [their] ages — they don't necessarily understand everything and they ask a lot of questions.

By Jaime Harkin / With reporting by Fortune Benatar

The retired MLB star says he and his wife "couldn't be more excited" about teaming up with Jeep.

Any advice for new dads?

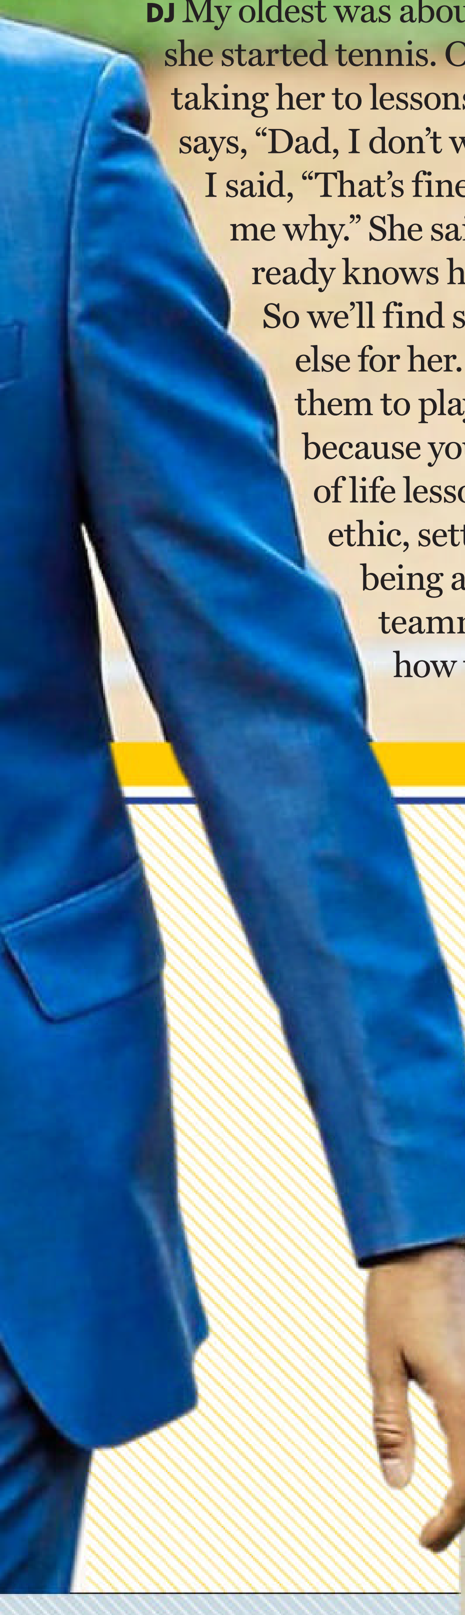
DJ Keep them alive! That's what I try to do, at least when they're younger. And the best thing I can say about my parents is they were always present, and that's what I try to do with my kids.

How are you and Hannah raising strong daughters?

DJ You want to be supportive. It sounds like a cliché, but you can accomplish anything if you have the right people around you. I want my girls to find whatever that is that they're passionate about, and I'll be there to support them.

Are they into sports?

DJ My oldest was about 4 when she started tennis. One day, I'm taking her to lessons, and she says, "Dad, I don't want to go." I said, "That's fine, but tell me why." She said she already knows how to play! So we'll find something else for her. I want them to play sports because you learn a lot of life lessons — work ethic, setting goals, being a good teammate and how to deal with failure — but I would never push them into it.



Tell us about why you teamed up with Jeep Grand Wagoneer for their new "Eyes Wide Open" campaign.

DJ There's a lot of time spent in the car, whether it's school drop-off, pickup or events. Jeep is just a perfect car for us, and the core values of the company align with me as a person and as a family.

What are your favorite things to do together as a family?

DJ We're always on the road. We live in Miami, so whether it's going to the beach or tennis lessons, you name it, we do it. We have dance parties every night. I've had my fingernails and my toenails polished. [Laughs.] I have a new appreciation for women and what it takes to get ready now.

How do you and Hannah keep the spark alive?

DJ We take time for ourselves and go out to dinner. I'm very proud of our sleep schedule for the girls; they go to sleep at 7 and get up at 7, which is good — but the bad thing is I go to sleep at 8:30! So we have a good hour and a half to grab something to eat.

Do you ever miss playing baseball?

DJ I really don't. There hasn't been a day since I retired that I wished I was playing. If you could drop me into the World Series, that would be kind of fun, but no, it's a grind.

What's next for you?

DJ I think most athletes say, "I can't wait to retire, I'm going to drink wine and play golf every day." But that lasts for about a week, and then you've got to do something. I love to compete, and I don't think I could slow down.

You're the new MLB sports announcer for Fox. What contributed to your decision to sign on?

DJ Don't tell my wife, but I have a little bit more time now. I love the game, so I want to be a fan of the game and share some of the things I've learned along the way. I'm looking forward to it. US

All-Star Dad!

Outnumbered! The athlete is having a blast raising his three girls

"They all have different personalities," he notes.

"They're into swimming now," says Jeter.

Jeter's proved he's game for anything.

HOP TO IT

Culinary star Jamie Oliver serves up a cheesecake that's sure to sweeten your celebration

Jamie Oliver's decadent dessert is the perfect finale for a delicious Easter meal. "The zing of lemon, tang of raspberries and sweet caramel flavor of the biscuit base will bring a smile to everyone's faces around the table," the Naked Chef alum tells Us of his cheesecake, featured in his latest cookbook, One: Simple One-Pan Wonders. But beware: Oliver warns it's so tasty that "it won't be around for long!"

Baked Lemon Cheesecake

SERVES 12

INGREDIENTS

- ½ cup unsalted butter
- 8 oz Lotus Biscoff or gingersnap cookies
- 4 large eggs
- 1 tsp vanilla bean paste
- ¾ cup confectioner's sugar, plus extra for dusting
- 1½ lbs cream cheese
- 1 lemon
- 10 oz raspberries

INSTRUCTIONS

❶ Preheat the oven to 325 degrees. Melt the butter in an 11-inch ovenproof frying pan over a low heat while you blitz the cookies until fine in a food processor. Turn the heat off, tip the cookie crumbs into the pan and mix well, then spread and pat out in an even layer, going slightly up the sides. Bake for 5 minutes, then remove.

❸ Pull out the pan and scatter over the rest of the raspberries, dust with a little extra confectioner's sugar, then pop back in for another 10 minutes. At this point, switch from the oven to the broiler on full whack until the top is beautifully golden and just starting to catch. Remove and leave to cool, then chill in the fridge for 2 hours before serving. The texture won't be completely smooth, but boy will it be delicious.

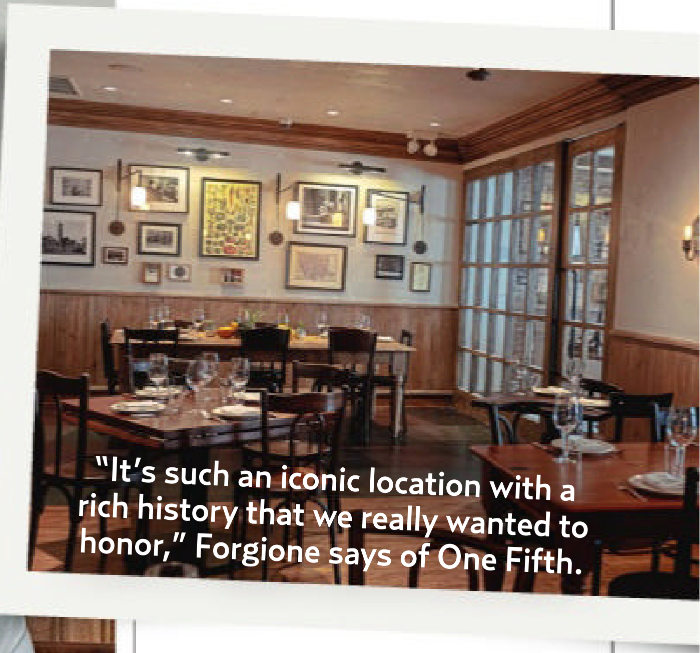
"I take a lot of culinary inspiration from [my dad]," says Forgione. "He helped start the farm-to-table movement, so I also focus on local, seasonal and foraged ingredients at all of my restaurants."



"It's such an iconic location with a rich history that we really wanted to honor," Forgione says of One Fifth.

NEW YORK State of Mind

This week celebrity chef Judy Joo chats with restaurateur Marc Forgione about life in and out of the kitchen

When it comes to dining, there's no greater place than NYC. "You can get any type of cuisine at any time. From dim sum early on a Saturday morning to chicken over rice from a halal stand late at night, we have it all," says chef Marc Forgione, the mastermind behind countless eateries in the Big Apple. "The restaurant I'm a partner at, Khe-Yo, was actually the first Laotian restaurant to open up in NYC," he notes. "I have people tell me all the time how much they love it, and there's nothing else like it in the city." Here, Forgione sits down at his newly revived Italian hotspot, One Fifth, in Greenwich Village to chat with chef Judy Joo about food, family and his favorite treats.

You opened One Fifth last summer in a building with nearly 100 years of history. How did that inspire the decor and menu?
Decor-wise, we gave the space a face-lift but kept a lot of the key elements the same, like the marble bar, high tops in the bar, the art deco floor. For the menu, we took inspiration from being so close to Union Square Greenmarket. So it's Italian but with a local, seasonal focus.

You started your career at 16, joining your dad, Larry Forgione, at his restaurant An American Place. Do you enjoy teaming up with family?
I'm actually working with my dad now at One Fifth! He spent years developing the pinsa dough recipe we have, and now he's our consulting chef.

In 2010, at age 31, you won The Next Iron Chef and became the youngest champ in the show's history. What was that like?
I went on hoping it would help get more people to eat at my restaurant! That was a way to introduce what we did back then.

It was a different time! What do you think the most overrated food trend is right now?
Copying dishes based on Instagram.

Back to NYC, there's nothing better than enjoying a good meal and catching a Broadway show. What's your favorite concession stand snack?
Butterfinger.

What about your favorite ice cream flavor?
Hazelnut. The first time I tasted it, I was backpacking through Europe. I think my eyes literally rolled into the back of my head.

“He’s going through a bit of a midlife crisis,” O’Dowd says of his character.

Twist Of Fate

Chris O’Dowd talks to Us about his latest project, The Big Door Prize

In The Big Door Prize (March 29 on Apple TV+), residents of a small town are transformed when Morphe — a machine that dispenses a card revealing people’s true life potential — arrives at a local store. Chris O’Dowd talks to Us about the moving comedy.

Q: What can you share?

I play Dusty, a European history teacher implanted from Ireland. He’s married happily, he thinks, with a daughter. We meet him on the morning of his 40th birthday, and his life is going fairly well, but the machine fking ruins everything, tells everybody they’re doing their lives wrong and Dusty’s life is somewhat thrown into chaos.

Q: What inspired you to take on this role?

I play a lot of man-children, and this felt like a man who’s going through a grown-up problem. He’s not sure that the marriage is going to last, and he’s about to be an empty nester. That’s the point at which many people make big choices, and the card, I suppose, acts as a catalyst to a lot of those choices and speeds up people’s thinking. That was a big draw.

Q: If Morphe were to predict your destiny, what would you hope it would say?

I would want it on both sides to say: Please turn over.

Dungeons & Dragons: Honor Among Thieves

Nope, you don't have to be a fan of the classic game to enjoy its big-screen adaptation. And given that the fantasy-adventure is overly plotted, long (135 minutes!) and CGI'ed, that's a big-time compliment. A spirited cast helps the cause: Chris Pine, practically oozing charisma, is a thief determined to retrieve a lost relic and his long-lost daughter. (Hugh Grant's winking villain, i.e., the Lord of Neverwinter, possesses both.) He rounds up a ragtag team of adventurers, played by Michelle Rodriguez, Regé-Jean Page, Justice Smith and Sophia Lillis, to get the job done — and overcome all the challenges along the way. Because of the dense and insider-y exposition, the screenwriters wisely load their film with fun-for-all humor. Many moments are indeed inspired, especially a scene in which the group quizzes talking corpses in a cemetery. So, who wins? Everybody. MARA REINSTEIN

THINGS YOU DON'T KNOW ABOUT ME

BY Marie Osmond

The showbiz legend entertains Us with some fun personal facts

Osmond's Nutrisystem plan, Complete 55, is available now.

1. I have many secret talents: I can drink a 32-oz bottle of water faster than anyone. I sew, knit and make quilts. I can also sing classical opera.

2. My favorite live show was the first time I performed "Paper Roses" at Madison Square Garden. I was barely 13.

3. My No. 1 beauty trick is dermatologist-grade Retin-A. Start using it by the time you're 40 and be seriously consistent by 50.

4. I had Elvis' number, but my mom wouldn't let me call him.

5. I have many shoes I love, and I love them all equally.

6. My go-to delivery order is a bean and cheese burrito and, once in a while, a taquito.

7. Growing up, I loved Loretta Lynn because she wrote songs, had a career, raised her children and was truly a complete woman.

8. I like watching sports. I probably could have been a good tennis player, but I was never somewhere long enough to get good at anything.

9. One place I'm dying to go to is Jerusalem — and I'm going in May!

10. Sculpting was my hobby. I designed dolls for 25 years and ended up turning that into a successful business.

11. My favorite modern-day pop artist is Ed Sheeran.

12. My favorite movie is The Notebook. I love a great romantic movie.

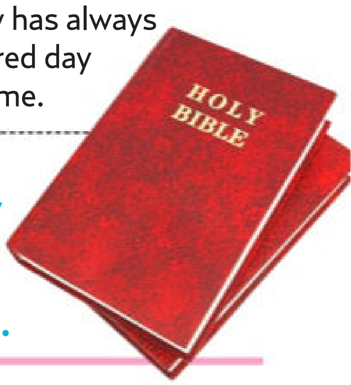
13. My first car was a Chevy Chevette that had no carpet. Donny [Osmond] and I did a commercial, and I got a blue one, and he got a green one.

14. Paul McCartney once knocked on my door in London to get my autograph for his daughter.

15. My most embarrassing on-set moment was fainting on Dancing With the Stars. I don't even remember it.

16. Sunday has always been a sacred day of rest for me.



17. My favorite book is the Bible.

18. The kindest celebrity I ever met was my dear friend Olivia Newton-John.

19. My favorite duet to perform is "Meet Me in Montana."

20. My favorite gift is my engagement ring from when my husband asked me to marry him the second time.

21. My alternate profession would maybe be a makeup artist or [something] in the fashion industry.

22. Kurt Russell was my childhood crush. He used to come over and hang out with my brothers. I'd just sit there and think, "He's so handsome."

23. I've taken a few of my name tags from doors as keepsakes from sets.

24. A common misconception about me is that I'm naive. You can't be in this business for six decades and be naive.

25. I don't watch reality TV. I'd rather live in my own reality!
